Political Cartoons

To my friends whose confidence was unwavering when the shafts were barbed with malice and falsehood, and when wit or humor fashioned the arrow, mingled their laughter with mine, this collection from leading American Cartoonists is offered.

Gathered by their Target,

Richard Lordan

The Publications and Artists in the subjoined list have with courtesy and promptitude, generously given these masterpieces of the American Cartoonists' Art for this collection. To them is tendered the sincere thanks and appreciation of the Collector.

The first Baron Wantage, of England, died several days ago, leaving no issue. He had a long career as a soldier and literary man. His first service as a soldier was in the Crimean War, in which he won a Victoria Cross for bravery in battles, and later he was a brigadier-general of volunteers, lord lieutenant of Berkshire, equerry to the Prince of Wales and Financial Secretary to the War Office in Lord Beaconsfield's government. As chairman of the English Red Cross Society he went to camp hospitals in wars in which his own country was not engaged. He wrote articles on war topics and on the work of the Red Cross Society. WONDER WHY?

PROFESSOR HADLEY WANTS IDEALS IN POLITICS—WHAT 'S THE MATTER WITH THESE?

HOW RICHARD CROKER LOOKS AT PRESENT.

The Tammany leader receives callers in his private house at Letcombe Regis, where he is at present.

He sits in an easy chair, his injured leg enveloped in bandages and set in plaster of paris on a chair.

On a recent occasion he wore a plaid smoking jacket, golf breeches, woolen socks and slippers.

Although worn from his illness, his iron will is still dominant, as is evinced by his firmly set mouth and strong, self-reliant eyes.

CROKER—This corruption is just killing me!

"SIC HIM, DICK!"

Noted Jan. 13, 1901 SINGLE-HEADED.

"Well, I guess I'd better settle. 'Spose Albert Eddie needs the money!"

"TAMMANY IS GREAT AND CROKER GETS THE PROFIT."

HIS FINISH.

CROKER WOLSEY — I have touched the highest point of all my greatness,
And, from that full meridian of my glory,
I haste now to my setting. I shall fall
Like a bright exhalation in the evening,
And no man see me more

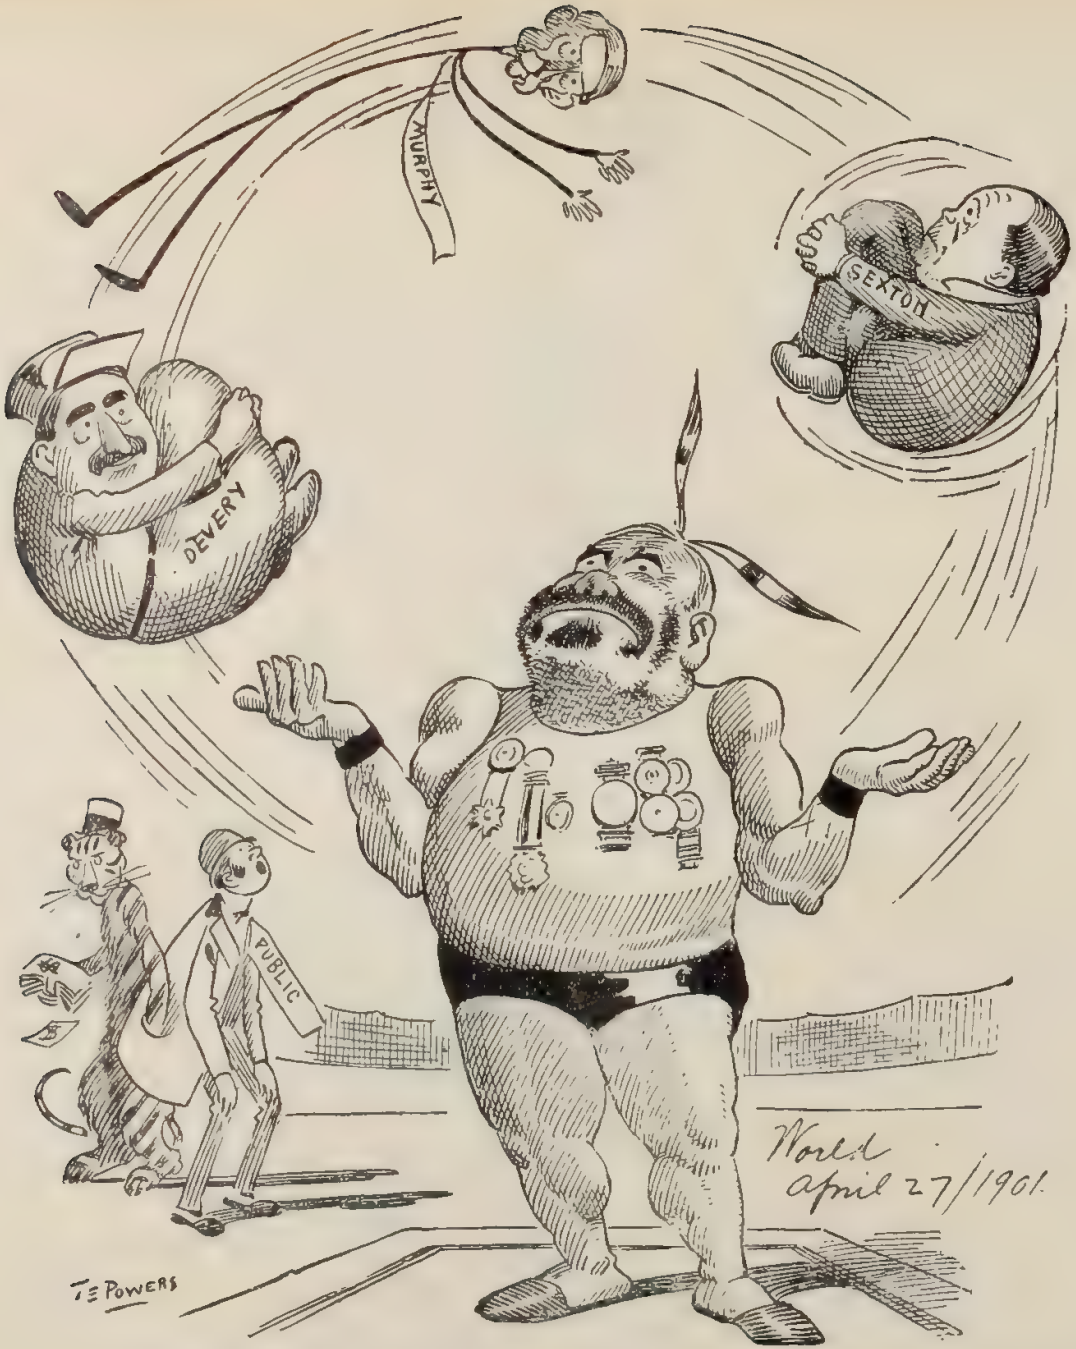
INVULNERABLE?

Croker—Well, watch Tammany. This combination of papers, preachers, Republicans and blackleg Democrats can't break Tammany, try as they will.—(Authorized statement to "The New-York Journal."

"I cannot tell a lie, Pop, I did it with your little hatchet."

If this city is to get $60,000 per year out of the new bridge, how much does this English gentleman get?



The police juggling act is one of the dazzling features with which the Big Chief interests and at the same time humbugs the New York public.

The Senator to the King—Whom has Your Majesty decided upon for Mayor?

The King to the Senator—Oh, really! I couldn't presume, don't you know! Whom do YOU want?
